UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO GRADUATE NAMED
PROFESSOR AT FEDERAL MEDICAL SCHOOL

BETHESDA, Md. – Andrew J. Satin, M.D., who received his bachelor's degree from the University of Chicago in 1981, has been promoted to professor in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences.

Doctor Satin, a lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Air Force Medical Corps, is department vice chair, head of OB/GYN's education division, and a member of the university's Committee on Academic Appointments and Promotions. He has been on the OB/GYN faculty since 1996.

Doctor Satin, who earned his medical degree at USU in 1986, also is program director of the Uniformed Services Residency in Obstetrics and Gynecology and serves as an editorial board member of the journal Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Established by Congress in 1972, the Uniformed Services University is the nation's only fully accredited federal school of medicine and graduate school of nursing. It has provided the country with more than 3,000 outstanding military and public health physicians, scientists and health care practitioners. USU also is recognized as a leader in education, research and consultation programs in areas such as military medicine, medical readiness, tropical diseases and disaster medicine.
